

Group Member Roles – Midterm and Final Project

Group members: Caitlin Cohen, Jana Kornely, AJ Martinez, and Alec Pritchard

In terms of the work that lead up to the midterm, every student did some research on different issues related to topic and shared their findings with the group. The group then met after class and we all collaborated together to create the sitemap and decide on the website's overall design. The wireframes were all created by AJ, and Caitlin created the mood board and wrote this text about the roles. The manifesto was divided into two parts with the first part about the petition being written by Alec and the part about the thoughts that the group put into the website being written by Jana who furthermore worked on the logo. We communicated constantly and made suggestions and changes to each other's work, so that every part can somewhat be seen as a collaborative work. Alec then took the different parts and put them together into a prezi. We all met up prior to the presentation to practice for it and put in equal effort.

With regard to the final project and website, AJ will be responsible for creating the website on wix.com (except for the blog) and putting together a short video. Alec has taken on the role of researching for and creating the petition we will have on our site, and will formulate the text on the site describing the petition as well. He has also taken on the role of creating the section on our website that gives the public information on events related to the Flint water crisis and possible opportunities for activism. Caitlin is responsible for writing the texts for the "About" section of the site, which include descriptions for "Our Goal", "Background", and "Health Issues". Jana has taken on the role of managing the social media in relation to our site and movement, including making a Facebook page, a Twitter account, and a news blog that we will have in its own section on the website.
